Though I have worked in the Information Technology profession for many of the big insurance companies in the Hartford area for the last 30+ years, my real passion is in wildlife and scenic photography.

The New England area serves as a rich, photographic “hunting” ground for wildlife, especially migratory birds. For example, some of the best spots to observe wintering Bald Eagles are right here in Enfield by the Connecticut River.

In recent years, I have been able to combine my love of the outdoors, teaching and photography through volunteer work at Northwest Park in Windsor, CT. In conjunction with the Park Director, we have conducted workshops that are just the right mix of photography and nature. Photographic technique and a good understanding of animal habits go hand-in-hand with getting the “shot”!

Many of the wildlife and scenic pictures from Northwest Park were part of a video presentation for a photo contest sponsored by the Windsor Historical Society that won 1st place.

Photographing seascapes and lighthouses are what I enjoy the most, though they can be very challenging in the winter. Sunrise and sunset hours are the best. But those pre-dawn trips with the sub-zero temps and bone-chilling winds will certainly teach patience and perseverance! It is well worth the effort.

Several of my favorite lighthouse pictures are available at Rockland Breakwater Lighthouse, Nubble Lighthouse and Portland Head lighthouse gift shops in Maine.

Custom printing, matting and framing are available on request.
